Long Beach Commissions, Committees, and Boards

Frequently Asked Questions

Why join a Commission, Committee or Board?

The City of Long Beach is distinguished for the dedicated participation of its citizens. One way to participate and make a difference is to serve on a Commission, Committee, or Board.

How do I join a Commission?

Citizens interested in joining a commission, committee, or board should complete an application and submit it directly to the Mayor's office or their councilmember for review.

Where do I pick up an application?

Applications are available at City Hall in the City Clerk's office (located on the main floor), calling the Mayor or City Council Office, or on-line at www.longbeach.gov.

Do I need to live in Long Beach?

Yes, commissioner, board or committee members must live in the City during their service on the advisory body, unless otherwise noted.

Can my councilmember help me?

Yes, they can assist you with the application process. Close communication with your councilmember is highly recommended.

How does Mayor Beverly O'Neill make her recommendations?

The Mayor makes recommendations based upon qualifications, community service, and experience. Approval of the recommendation is required by City Council.
